Pitch

An interstellar love song where the fifth dimension is love itself.

Description

"Fifth Dimension" picks up Carl Sagan's idea — that for small creatures, the vastness is bearable only through love — and turns it into a hard-rocking, blues-tinged song about two who choose each other over fear. The result is intimate and enormous at once.

Appendix A: Lyrics

Standing at her door
Today as day before
Afraid to go indoor Question - wherefore?

My home is crazy
Just exact like me
Her door is far away from here
I'm having a cup of tea
I can send her a message
By our secret Net
I can't wait till morning
So I could send my bat

Another sunrise
Staring to her snake eyes
She's a Monticore
Don't fear anymore

She has been modified
Her tail, her paws, her face
Natural tree cat am I
But she's from other race
No chance to be together
So fate has rolled the dice
I'm on my way to cosmos
It's wise

We warp the space
Warp fabric of the space
Arrived to place
On the planet we build base
City and the base
We found perfect place
Place to build new home
Sweet home for our race

So Sun rotates
Rotates in any case
Vast glaces on the Earth
Pushed cats to outer space
Warped space
Cats on secret base
But alien cat's sent back the bat
And found his embrace

Love it is not just a memory trace
Love is fifth dimension
after time and space

Appendix B: Epigraphs

For small creatures such as we are, the vastness is bearable only through love.

— Carl Sagan — Astronomer, astrophysicist, and science communicator,

We are all different, but we share the same human spirit. Perhaps it's human nature that we adapt and survive.
